

Olivette in Bloom Completes Third Garden

Olivette in Bloom, a community effort, has completed its fourth year of planting and maintaining gardens for Olivette. Visit our third and newest garden filled with Missouri native plants in front of the Olivette Community Center. The Stacy Park garden is thriving in spite of the hail storm in May. Veteran's Memorial Park at the corner of Dielman and Olive was disrupted by road work this summer, but plans are underway to renovate and enlarge the garden next spring.

Special thanks to Jasmine Fazzari (OCC), Susan Grossman and Peter Hoch (Veteran's) and Marcia Carpenter (Stacy) for their designs of these three gardens.

We are indebted to the 45 volunteers who provided labor to maintain the gardens through the growing season and to the many generous individuals from our community whose contributions make our work possible. Olivette in Bloom is grateful for the generous help from Bruce Beckmann of Beckmann Brothers, Inc., Ronn Nadeaux, and Hartke's during the past year. The annual mum sale held at Stacy Park in September helps Olivette in Bloom continue its work.

We invite you to join in this effort. Volunteer to help. Meet new people and learn more about gardening. Lend your talents to help make Olivette beautiful. It's your community, too! For further information write Olivette in Bloom, P.O. Box 8308, Olivette, MO 63132 or e-mail Lynn at OIB@charter.net. Olivette in Bloom is a non-profit organization. Contributions are always welcome and are tax-deductible.
